Welcome to Woodland Pond

Read together. Colour together. Share a little kindness.

Inside your book

Join Pip, Hazel and Ricky for a woodland picnic and a story about helping friends. Each of the ten story pages has a scene to colour.

Printing your adventure

Use US Letter paper (8.5 x 11 inches) and Actual size / 100%.
Print single-sided in black and white or greyscale.
Regular white printer paper works well with crayons or coloured pencils.
Place a spare sheet underneath if using markers; ink may show through.

Choose what to print

Print the whole PDF for the cover, this guide and all ten story pages.
For just the story-and-colouring pages, select PDF pages 3-12.
The printed story page numbers run from 1 to 10.

Enjoy it together

Read each short passage aloud, then colour the scene in your own way.
Talk about a time you helped someone or someone helped you.
There is no right colour for a Woodland Pond adventure.

A bright idea

Pip packed a little picnic for Woodland Pond. She tucked apples into her basket and hopped along the path. Today felt full of possibilities.

A tumble of acorns

Around the bend, Hazel's basket tipped. Acorns rolled across the path. Pip stopped. Her picnic could wait. Her friend needed a helping paw.

One helping paw

Pip set down her apples and helped Hazel gather the acorns. They counted each one together. Soon the path was clear, but the basket handle was broken.

A clever friend

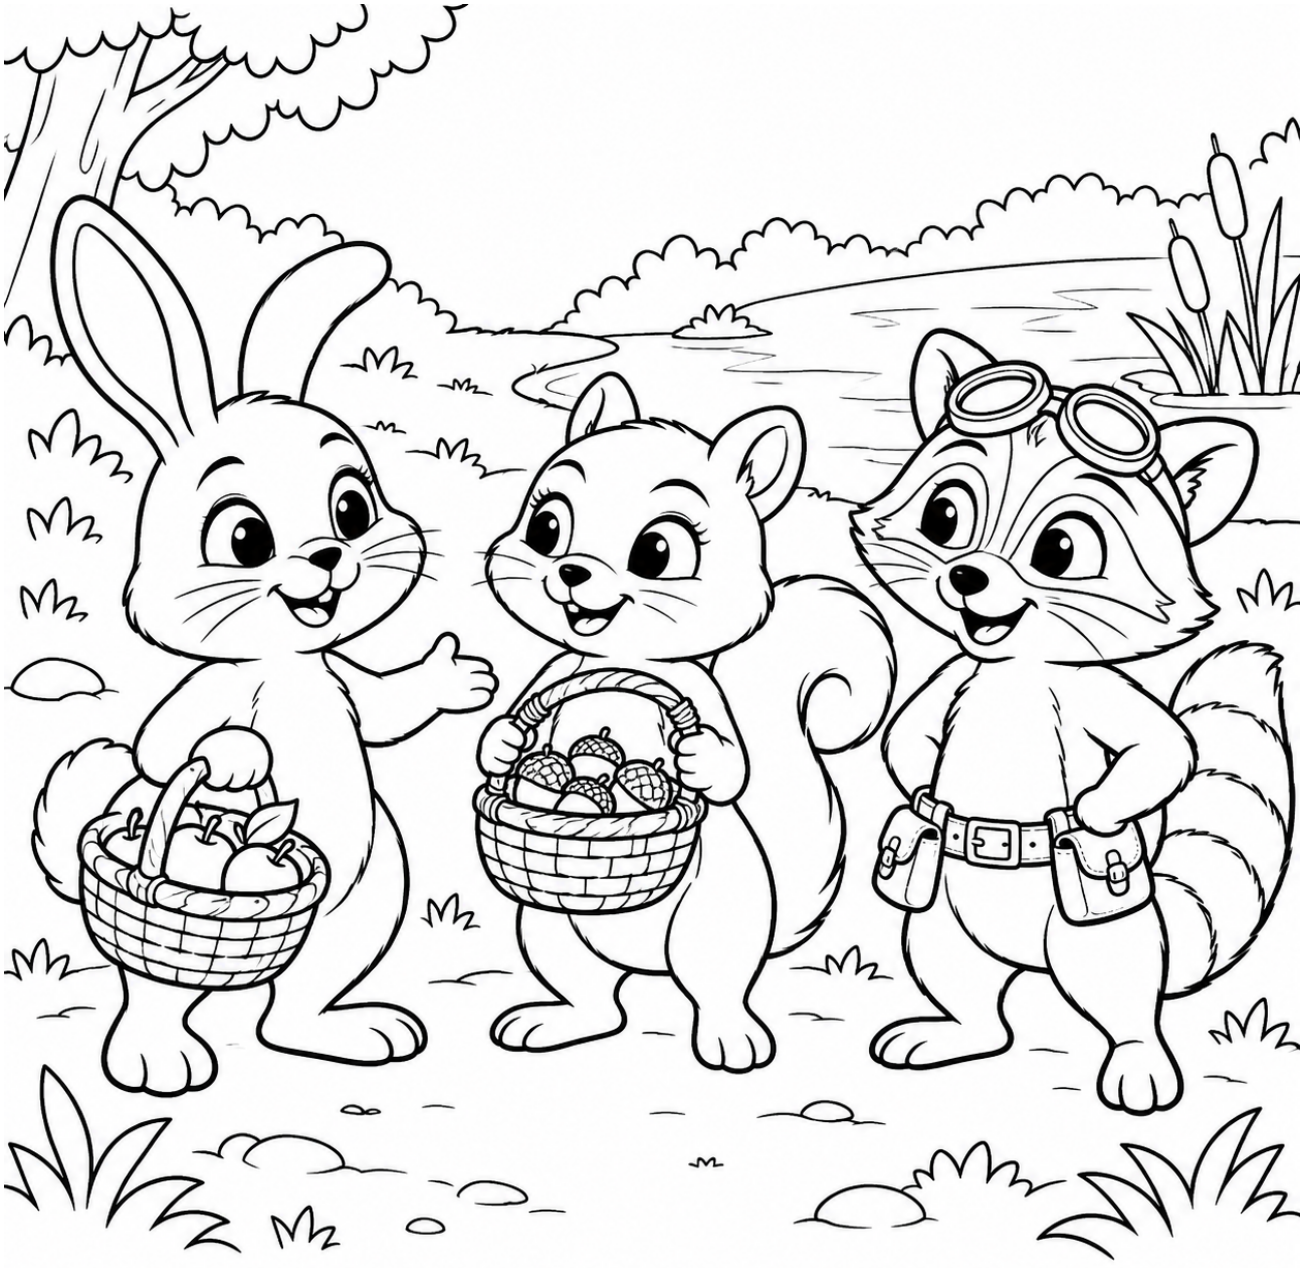

Ricky was sorting tools nearby. He spotted the broken handle and smiled. "I can help!" he said. Hazel and Pip carried the basket to his workbench.

Better together

Ricky looped strong twine around the handle. Pip held it steady while Hazel passed the spool. Three friends, three small jobs, and one basket ready to carry again.

Room for everyone

Hazel lifted her mended basket. "Thank you!" she said. Pip looked at her apples. "Would you both come to my picnic?" There was room for everyone.

A place to share

At the pond, Ricky spread a blanket. Hazel placed smooth stones at its corners. Pip brought the apples. Their picnic was taking shape.

The best part

They sat beside the sparkling water and shared the apples. Hazel saved her acorns for later. Ricky grinned. "Helping made our picnic even better!" Pip thought so too.

Kindness carries on

A breeze lifted a paper napkin from the blanket. Hazel caught it before it reached the pond. Together, the friends packed every scrap away and left the grass tidy.

A little act grows

On the walk home, Pip smiled. One helping paw had become three. A small kindness had brought them together, and tomorrow held another chance to help.
